Black Rock on Salt Lake (1902)

John Hafen
1856-1910

John Hafen, one of Utah's most celebrated impressionist painters, was born in Scherzingen, Switzerland in 1856. His family immigrated to Utah after converting to The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, first settling in Richfield before making their permanent home in Salt Lake City.

In the 1890s, Hafen returned to Europe, studying at the Julian Academy in Paris as an "art missionary" where exposure to French Impressionism transformed his style into a lighter, more emotional example of plein-air landscapes. Returning to Utah, he devoted his career to the state's natural scenery including the cover art shown here, "Black Rock on the Salt Lake."

Our Mission

With every initiative and every grant, the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation is deeply committed to the people of Utah, investing in programs that improve lives, strengthen communities, and make a meaningful difference, now and in perpetuity.

George & Dolores Eccles

George and Dolores (affectionately known as “Lolie”) Eccles were among Utah’s most admired and active civic leaders, and were deeply committed to improving the lives of people throughout the state. Their enduring legacy, built over six decades, reflects their vision, philanthropic spirit, and shared passion for giving. From the beginning, the Foundation was established to focus on five key areas: arts and culture, community, education, health care, and preservation of Utah’s history and conservation of its natural beauty. The impact of their generosity, now exceeding $1 billion, continues to grow and benefit Utahns in countless ways.

Message from the Chairman

Legacy.

It's not a word we take lightly around here.

From an early age, I learned about the profound legacy of my grandfather, David Eccles. A pioneer, politician, banker and industrialist, he was a titan who founded more than 50 successful businesses during his lifetime. But even as his prosperity grew, he never forgot the poverty of his youth and did what he could to help others in need.

As a family, we admire his role in building the West and, just as importantly, we honor his values of integrity, ingenuity, perseverance, and generosity.

These values were passed down to my Uncle George and Aunt Lolie, remarkable community leaders who also loved this state and her people. And today, I along with my dear fellow board members, Bob Graham and my daughter Lisa, are doing our darndest to continue that tradition of helping the people of Utah thrive!

In every way, our Foundation strives to uplift, educate and benefit individuals and families throughout the state by working with nearly 400 capable and caring nonprofit partners. It's been a joy to see the impact their work is having in communities across Utah. How a new University of Utah hospital in West Valley City will expand access to much-needed health care and lift an entire community. How the Utah Food Bank mobile food pantry is supporting families in Fairview. How RISE Culinary Institute is opening doors of opportunity to refugee and immigrant women. And how so many are tackling some of our state's toughest challenges including protecting the Great Salt Lake.

Spencer F. Eccles, Board Chair and CEO; Lisa Eccles, President and COO*

We are honored to partner in these efforts and more. I truly believe my grandfather would be proud of the work being done to support the people and communities he loved so dearly.

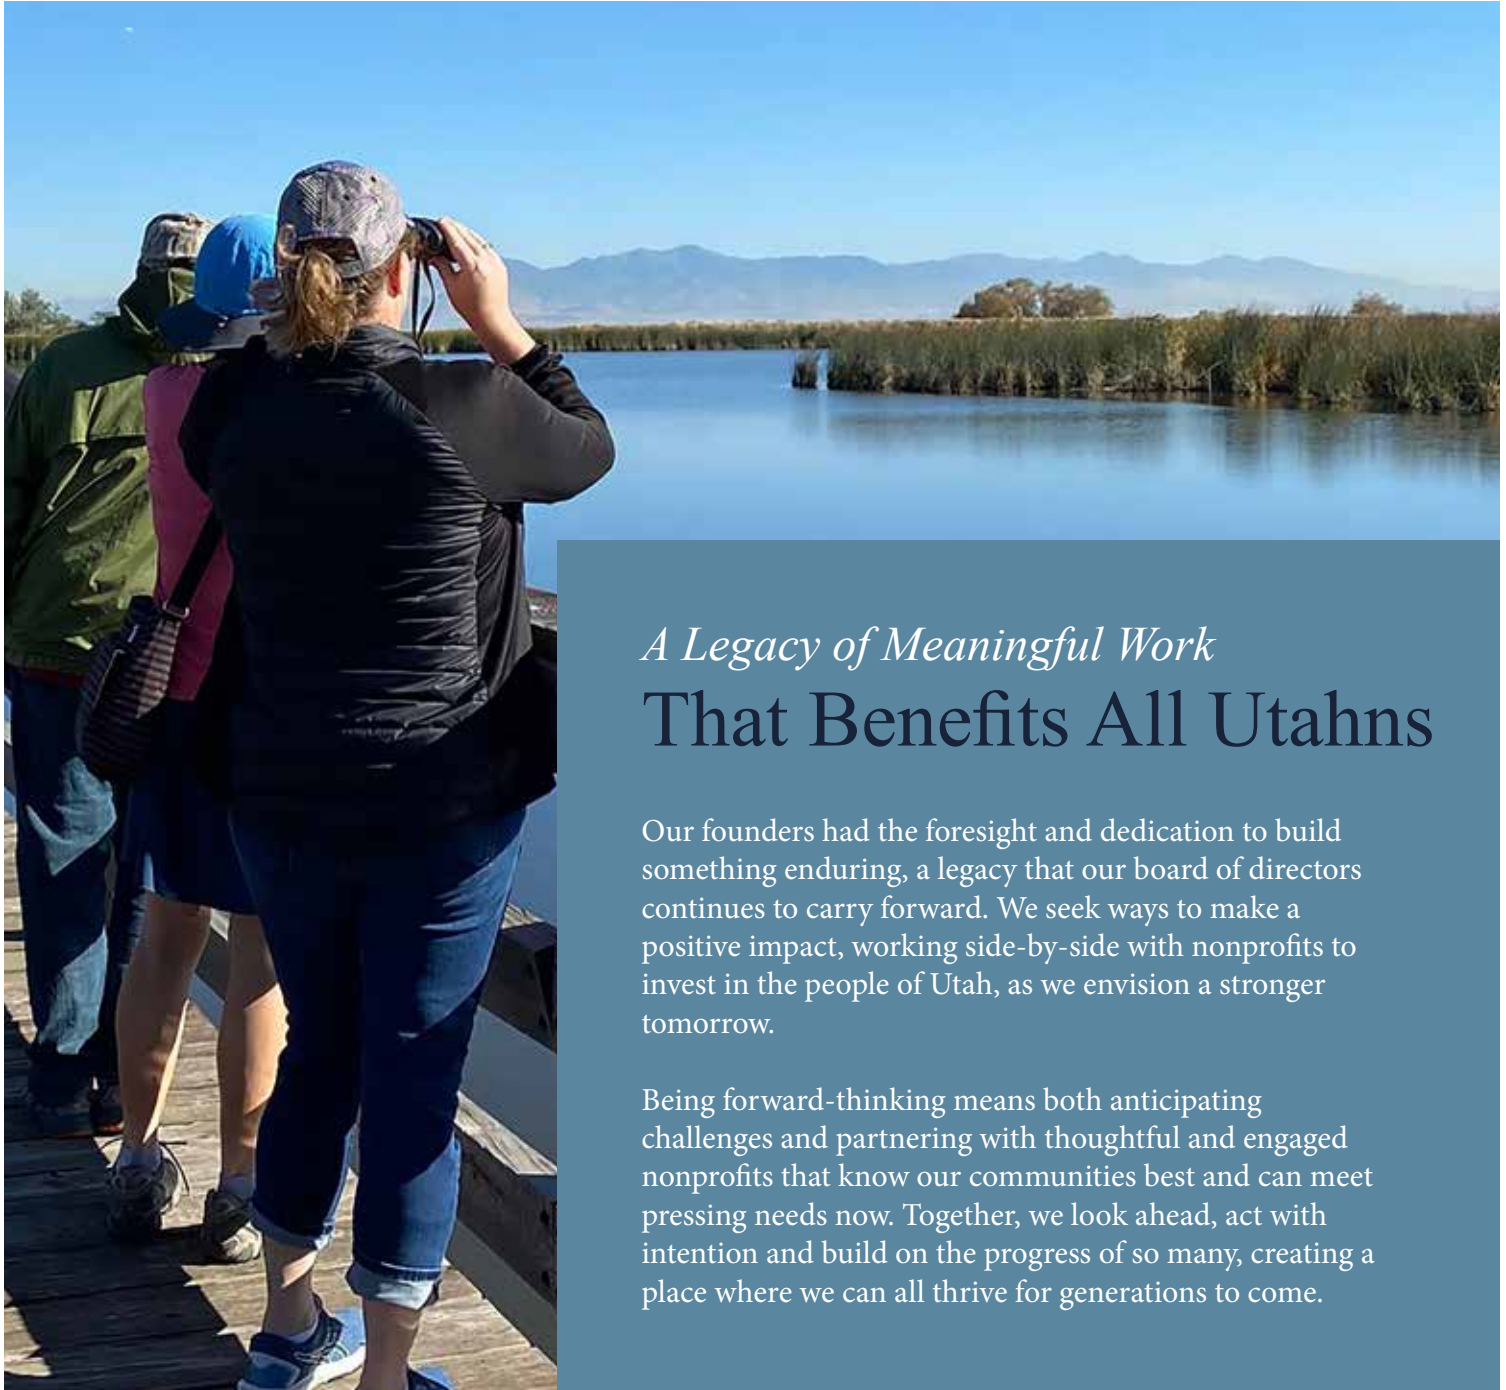

As we look ahead, we remain committed to the vision that has guided us for generations, the reach of our impact, the stewardship that defines our work today, and the legacy that we continue to build together. And as I always like to say, “the best is yet to come!”

VISION

An impressionist landscape painting featuring rolling hills and a valley. The color palette is dominated by various shades of blue, green, and purple, with some warmer tones like red and orange. The brushwork is visible and textured, characteristic of the Impressionist style. The word 'VISION' is overlaid in large white serif font across the center of the image.

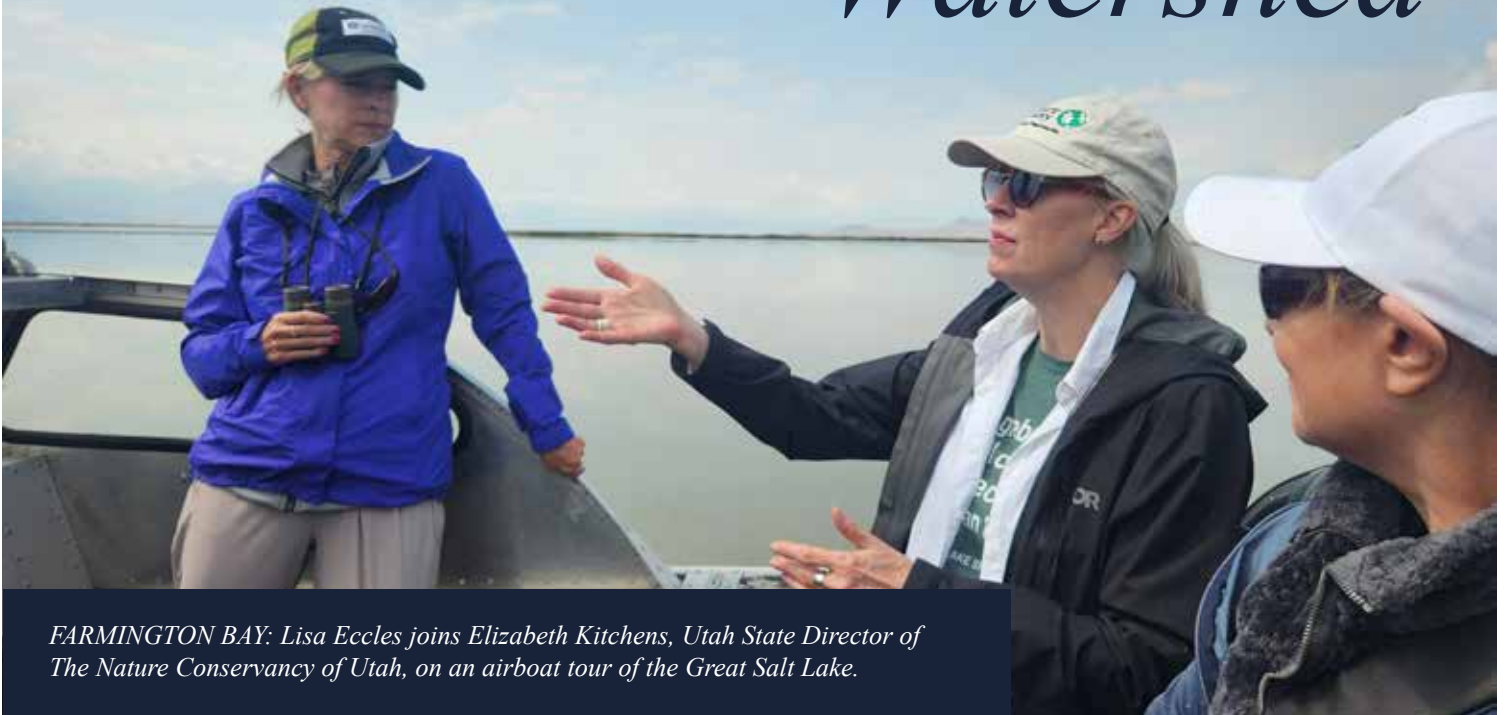

A Legacy of Meaningful Work That Benefits All Utahns

Our founders had the foresight and dedication to build something enduring, a legacy that our board of directors continues to carry forward. We seek ways to make a positive impact, working side-by-side with nonprofits to invest in the people of Utah, as we envision a stronger tomorrow.

Being forward-thinking means both anticipating challenges and partnering with thoughtful and engaged nonprofits that know our communities best and can meet pressing needs now. Together, we look ahead, act with intention and build on the progress of so many, creating a place where we can all thrive for generations to come.

GREAT SALT LAKE Watershed

FARMINGTON BAY: Lisa Eccles joins Elizabeth Kitchens, Utah State Director of The Nature Conservancy of Utah, on an airboat tour of the Great Salt Lake.

“From every angle, the Great Salt Lake is teeming with life. Its vast waters are home to thousands of birds and wildlife, forming one of the West’s most vital — and unique — ecosystems.”

—LISA ECCLES, COO

In 2025 there has been a resurgence of collaboration and work put into the health of one of Utah’s most important and vital natural resources, the Great Salt Lake. Community leaders, state officials, scientists, and nonprofit organizations have come together, united with purpose, keenly focused, and driven by a shared knowledge that the lake’s health is critical to our future.

This renewed commitment is to not just preserve, but to protect and restore this precious natural wonder.

Over the years, the Foundation has supported dozens of nonprofits all working to educate about the pivotal role the Great Salt Lake plays in our lives and to safeguard the lake’s future.

‘SECRETS OF GREAT SALT LAKE’

This year, through a $1 million grant, The George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation partnered with Max McGraw Wildlife Foundation to underwrite and premiere the new documentary, “Secrets of Great Salt Lake.” This film — now available in IMAX theaters across the country and the world — teaches us how crucial the lake is to life in Utah and beyond. Tens of thousands of school children and visitors will learn about this indispensable resource when the film opens as a permanent feature at the new Antelope Island State Park Visitor Center in 2026.

DUCKS UNLIMITED (DU)

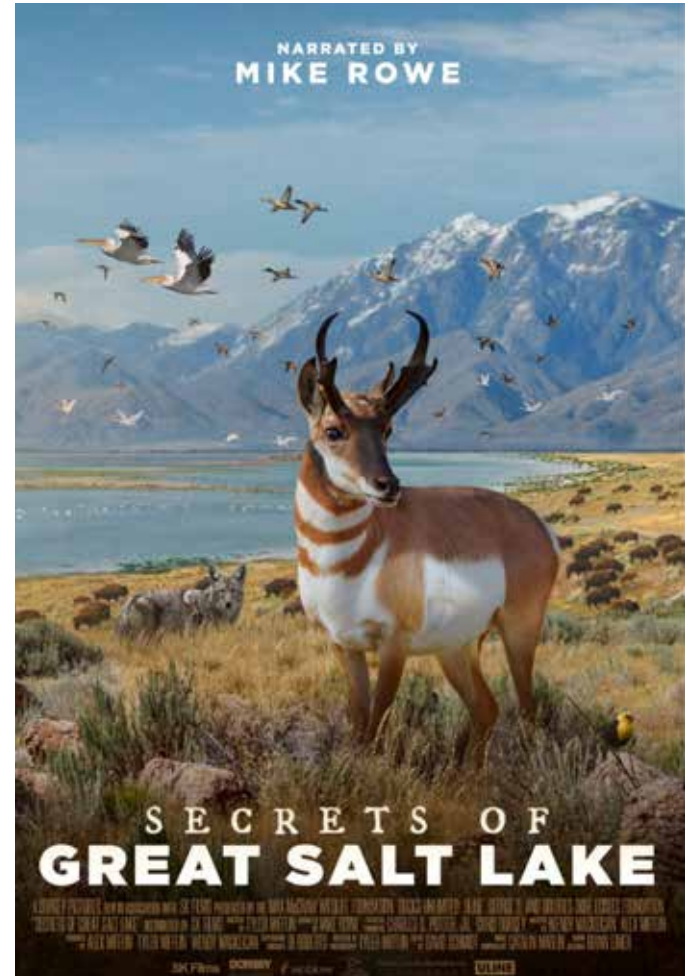

Our partners at DU have been working on wetland conservation in the Great Salt Lake ecosystem thanks to a $100,000 grant from our Foundation. This work includes improving water quality inflows, enhancing wetland infrastructure, and managing invasive species that are an ongoing threat to marsh health and bird population.

THE NATURE CONSERVANCY OF UTAH

A trusted partner of the Foundation for over 35 years, The Nature Conservancy of Utah has shared our desire to preserve land and water all across the state. Their leadership and deep knowledge of the Great Salt Lake can make a lasting difference. With the Foundation’s $2 million contribution to their “Nature Unites Us” campaign, their work is enhancing water flow, agriculture efficiency, and education about this important ecosystem as well as other vital projects throughout the state.

UTAH HEADWATERS INITIATIVE

The Foundation has proudly supported the Summit Land Conservancy’s efforts to enhance the wetlands, riverbanks, water bodies, and ecosystems that feed into the larger Great Salt Lake watershed. This essential work is part of their “Utah Headwaters Initiative” to contribute to a healthy lake for generations to come.

Eccles Health Campus

& ECCLES HOSPITAL IN WEST VALLEY

On a snowy day in March, the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation Board announced its largest gift to date — a $75 million investment to establish the University of Utah Eccles Health Campus and Eccles Hospital in West Valley. This state-of-the-art academic hospital will be a cornerstone of care, education, and opportunity, embedded in the vibrant West Valley community, the second largest city in Utah.

Recognizing the health disparities between the east and west sides of the valley, this world-class hospital will increase access, improve health outcomes, and save lives, but its impact will reach far beyond medical care. The hospital and health campus will offer educational opportunities, career pathways, and wrap-around support services onsite, a vision realized through our partnership with the University of Utah and our joint commitment to the people of Utah.

2034 WINTER OLYMPICS Podium34

“These Games – if we do them right – will ultimately have a tremendous and lasting benefit for every person in our state.”

—SPENCER FOX ECCLES,

Speaking in 2001 just prior to the 2002 Salt Lake City Winter Olympic Games

For years before the 2002 Salt Lake City Winter Games and in the decades since, the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation has been a proud and unwavering supporter of the Olympic ideals, investing in athletes, world-class venues, and youth programs.

In 2025, the Foundation proudly committed $20 million as a Founding Captain of Podium34 — a philanthropic initiative launched by the Organizing Committee for the 2034 Olympic & Paralympic Winter Games (OCOG). In addition to funding, Foundation advisory board member Spencer P. Eccles serves on the OCOG board of directors and Foundation president and COO Lisa Eccles is vice chair of the OCOG Impact and Legacy Committee.

With this early and essential support, we’ll ensure success in 2034 by providing premier facilities, resources for elite athletes, and a welcoming community that reflects who we are as a state.

The Utah 2034 Games have the power to bring out the best in all of us, building character, promoting healthy lifestyles, and uniting communities both here and across the globe.

Whether you’re an athlete or spectator, nothing unifies the world like the Olympic spirit.

BUILDING UPON THE 2002 GAMES' LASTING LEGACY

As the most-watched, best-attended, and financially successful Winter Games, 2002 cemented Salt Lake City and Utah as a winter sports capital. The Foundation's commitment in 2002 ran deep, investing over $27 million in state-of-the-art competition sites, the Olympic Village for athletes, and the iconic Olympic Cauldron. In the years since the Olympic flame was extinguished above Rice-Eccles Stadium, an additional $10 million has fueled youth sports, preserved Olympic culture and history, and strengthened community engagement.

This long-term vision of support and lasting impact can inspire us now and for generations to come, making the dream of a second Games in Utah a reality. And now, we are once again READY to show the world what it means to dream big. We are WILLING to work hard to make it happen. We are ABLE to support the athletes who reach for the gold, and we are EXCITED to welcome the world back to Salt Lake City and communities throughout Utah!

STEWARDSHIP

Investing in Utah and Strengthening Communities

Our board of directors believes in the careful management of resources to ensure a bright and prosperous future for Utah. Every day, we work to create a lasting impact through intentional philanthropic giving, knowing that wise stewardship can further strengthen our communities, now and for generations to come.

Neighborhood House Children's Center and SOAR Education Programs

SALT LAKE CITY

As one of Utah's oldest nonprofits, Neighborhood House has been dedicated to empowering children and adults through quality, affordable preschool, daycare, and programs that support happy and healthy families. Over the past 40 years, the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation has been honored to invest nearly $5 million in their mission, one that truly inspired Cleone P. Eccles. Serving on the Neighborhood House board for many years, Cleone saw firsthand the difference this organization made strengthening families and promoting stability. In addition to their preschool and daycare, their SOAR program serves teens from low-income families on Salt Lake's west side. Through education, career readiness, and mentorship, SOAR offers youth opportunities, encouragement and a community that believes in them!

"My son truly thrived. He got to meet kids he might never have crossed paths with, had real agency in shaping his own and others' experiences, learned about and gave back to his community, and still had a ton of fun."

—Whitney, A SOAR program parent

RISE Culinary Institute | Saffron Kitchen

SALT LAKE CITY

Founded by Lavanya Mahate, RISE Culinary Institute uses culinary training to empower refugee and immigrant women, building their skills and confidence, creating opportunities to support their families, and helping them thrive in their communities. This year, with the help from a $35,000 grant from the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation, they have expanded their reach, graduating 40 women to date with a 100% completion rate in their most recent cohort. Now, equipped with their new culinary skills, 80% of RISE graduates work in restaurants, bakeries, catering businesses, and meal-prep companies across Utah.

When Vanessa arrived in Utah from Colombia as a single mother, she carried just one dream — to build a better life. Through RISE Culinary Institute, she found not only professional training but a renewed sense of hope and belonging. Today, Vanessa is employed full-time in the culinary industry, proudly modeling to her daughter that with resilience and opportunity, anything is possible.

Eccles Distinguished Scholars

UNIVERSITY OF UTAH

For the past 15 years, the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation has invested $300,000 per year to support the Eccles Distinguished Scholars program, providing four years of support for tuition, books, and housing to Utah's best and brightest students. The most prestigious undergraduate scholarship awarded at the University of Utah, the program supports academic excellence and a transformative college experience so students can focus on their studies. Since its inception, hundreds of Eccles scholars have made meaningful contributions across Utah and the world as our next generation of leaders.

“My educational pursuits would not be possible without your generous scholarship. Thank you for helping me to reach my fullest personal and academic potential.”

— Isabel, 2024 Eccles Distinguished Scholar

Fullmer Boxing Gym

SOUTH JORDAN

Utah's legendary professional boxers Gene, Jay, and Don Fullmer had a dream to create a safe learning environment for at-risk youth through the sport of boxing. Today, the Fullmer Boxing Gym builds confidence and belonging through youth boxing and academic support programs. In 2025, with $300,000 in support from the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation, they opened the 16,500-square-foot community facility dedicated to youth boxing, wellness, and education. Since May, the Center has welcomed over 200 youth who find strength through mentorship and movement.

“They didn't just invest in me as a boxer—they invested in me as a person...The community shaped me into who I am today. Now I have the privilege of giving back.”

—Tanner, former youth boxer

Hope Lodge

SALT LAKE CITY

Celebrating its 10th anniversary, the Salt Lake Hope Lodge has been a game changer for cancer patients who have to travel long distances to receive their life-saving treatments. This home-away-from-home offers free, comfortable lodging so patients and their families can focus on healing rather than logistics and costs. With an average stay of 21 days, this American Cancer Society facility has hosted more than 24,000 guests from 35 states and four countries, with the vast majority coming from our Intermountain region and the rural areas of our state.

The George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation was an early supporter of this special place, knowing what an impact it would make on the lives of those facing cancer. Katie Eccles Burnett, an Eccles Foundation advisory board member and a member of the American Cancer Society national board, together with community leader, Zeke Dumke, co-chaired the $18 million campaign to help design and build the beautiful Hope Lodge in Salt Lake City — the first west of the Mississippi.

—HILDA, A HOPE LODGE GUEST

Utah Food Bank

URBAN & RURAL COMMUNITIES STATEWIDE

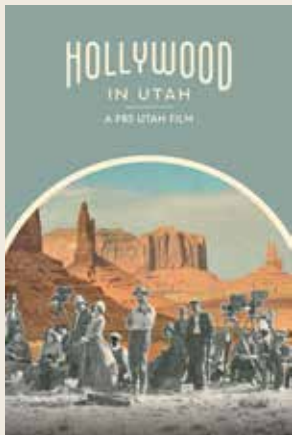

For more than four decades, the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation has been honored to stand alongside Utah Food Bank in supporting its mission to fight hunger statewide. Through funding and matching grants – especially during their annual Holiday Food & Fund Drive – the Foundation has helped them expand their reach year over year.

Under the leadership of Ginette Bott, Utah Food Bank has hit some impressive milestones such as the establishment of distribution centers in Washington, Utah, and San Juan Counties as part of a transformative expansion project which also included pantries on the Navajo Nation and in Hurricane. With the Foundation’s support, their food pantries serve four high-need areas of southern and southeastern Utah, as well as provide food for the Fairview Elementary Mobile School Pantry Program.

Utah Food Bank continues to be a vital resource statewide, with programs ensuring children and their families have consistent access to nutritious food.

PBS Utah Brings Home Seven Emmys

SALT LAKE CITY

The George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation is proud to support PBS Utah programs which brought home seven Emmy Awards this year. Congratulations to the honorees including:

Hollywood in Utah, a beautifully crafted documentary produced by PBS Utah and underwritten by the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation, received the Emmy Award for Best Historical Documentary — a powerful recognition of Utah’s century-long legacy in film. From our iconic red rock vistas that defined the classic western, to the small-town charm that brought “Footloose” to life, the movies love Utah as much as we do! Now, thanks to the PBS Utah team, audiences everywhere can see how our beautiful state has been a part of the industry’s cinematic history. The Hinckley Report — Utah and the Politics of Congress, won in the Interview / Discussion category. For the past 10 years, The Hinckley Report, with the talented Jason Perry, has made politics accessible and engaging. Through sharp analysis and compelling conversations, the weekly program has brought the most pressing issues of the day to audiences across the state and beyond.

Coach McBride's After School Programs

SALT LAKE & WEBER COUNTIES

On and off the field, Coach Ron McBride is an inspiration to us all. He's as passionate about helping kids today as he was in 1965 when he first started coaching football. Through mentorship, resources, and education, Coach McBride believes that "Every Child Deserves the Chance to Succeed." He is working with 30 Title 1 schools in Salt Lake and Weber Counties to provide quality afterschool programs to students K-12 that help build confidence and self-esteem in students who struggle to see their own worth. The students love being with Coach with all his high-fives and fun! The George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation proudly supports these efforts through a $75,000 grant.

At Granite Park Jr. High, one student struggled with disconnection and the pull of gang involvement. Everything changed when he joined Coach McBride's afterschool program. A teammate's kindness sparked transformation—suddenly he belonged. Teachers cheered at his games, teammates became friends, his grades dramatically improved, and his confidence soared.

"We've got to get these great kids to believe in themselves!"
— COACH MCBRIDE

Seager Clinic

OGDEN

It's been exciting to see Seager Memorial Clinic's transformation from Ogden's former Family History Library into a free health clinic, providing essential medical, dental, vision, and mental health care to those in need.

With a $100,000 grant from the George S. and Dolores Doré Foundation, the impact grew in 2025 with the completion of a dedicated eye clinic exam room. This space allows for free eye exams and prescription glasses for patients facing barriers to care, ensuring they receive the essential services needed to live a healthier life. Seager Memorial Clinic is building something truly extraordinary in northern Utah: a place for healing, hope, and community.

Ririe-Woodbury Dance Company

SALT LAKE CITY

With over 60 years of artistic excellence, Ririe-Woodbury Dance Company has been a cornerstone of contemporary dance in Utah and beyond, reminding us that ‘dance is for everybody.’ Their dynamic performances, inclusive education programs, and steadfast commitment to accessibility set them apart.

We also hold deep gratitude for Joan Woodbury and Shirley Ririe, the founders who made it all possible. Shirley’s passing in 2025 left a hole in our hearts and in the dance community, but her spirit lives on through the company’s powerful dance performances. The Joan Woodbury & Shirley Ririe Legacy Works Fund was established to honor both Shirley and Joan, who passed away in 2023. The fund supports local dancers and opportunities to bring innovative artists to Utah. The George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation’s contribution of $10,000 to the fund, along with an annual gift of $45,000, is our way of showing deep appreciation to Shirley, Joan, and the expressive, energetic dancers at Ririe-Woodbury Dance Company.

Joan Woodbury and Shirley Ririe (1974)

Helper Express Playground

CARBON & EMERY COUNTIES

The Helper Express Playground was a welcome addition to Carbon and Emery Counties this year — a place where all kids, including those with physical disabilities, can play together. A $5,000 grant from the George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation helped equip this first-of-its-kind inclusive playground in rural eastern Utah with equipment designed to give kids of all abilities a place to play, laugh, and build the best childhood memories.

LEGACY

Honoring the Resilience and Integrity that Shaped Utah's Future

More than a century ago, a 14-year-old Scottish immigrant arrived in Utah with no formal education, little more than the ragged clothes on his back and an unmatched entrepreneurial spirit. From a young age, David Eccles believed that hard work and integrity could transform not only his own life, but the lives of those around him.

From those humble beginnings, David would go on to found more than 50 businesses – railroads, lumber mills, construction companies, coal mines and banks – that fueled growth across Utah, the American West, and the nation. His legacy of prosperity and opportunity was carried forward by his children and grandchildren who have embraced his values of integrity, grit, and resilience.

Today our board honors that same spirit and a commitment to building a better future shaped by generosity, collaboration, and a deep belief in the people of Utah. And in the words of our CEO and Board Chair, Spencer F. Eccles ... for our state ... the best really is yet to come!

David Eccles Statue Dedication

UNIVERSITY OF UTAH

In August, students from the David Eccles School of Business at the University of Utah welcomed a new bronze statue of their school's namesake: David Eccles (1849-1912) depicted as a 14-year-old boy with tattered clothes, hand-carved kitchenwares tied to his belt, and the determination of a young entrepreneur. The sculpture reminds students and visitors that with grit, integrity, perseverance, and a commitment to community, anything is possible.

“He embodied both the classic American rags-to-riches story while often defying convention ... making it clear that the entire American West would be a different place had David Eccles not made that fateful westward journey in 1863.”

—DAVID M. KENNEDY,
Donald J. McLachlan Professor of History Emeritus,
Stanford University

A ‘Giant in our City’

Foundation president and COO Lisa Eccles was profoundly touched and honored to be named the Salt Lake Chamber's 46th Giant in our City, widely regarded as the most prestigious business award given in Utah. Lisa followed in the footsteps of previous Giants including her father Spence Eccles and her uncle George Eccles. In accepting the award, Lisa used the opportunity to spotlight the nonprofits that strengthen Utah communities.

“Through the years, I’ve been fortunate to see Utah’s goodness up close and personal as we’ve partnered with hundreds of dedicated nonprofit leaders and volunteers who are ‘boots on the ground,’ making a difference in every corner of our state.”

—LISA ECCLES

Spence Eccles Drive Dedication

On a warm fall day, University of Utah President Randall surprised the Foundation's Chairman and CEO with the exciting news that 1900 East on campus would be renamed Spence Eccles Drive. For over 60 years, Spence and his family have long supported the U, and their impact can be seen along the newly named road. The area features the Spencer S. Eccles Health Sciences Library, Emma Eccles Jones Medical Research Building, Cleone Peterson Eccles Center for Breast Health, Eccles Center of Excellence in Ophthalmic Education, George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Critical Care Pavillion, Hope Fox Eccles Clinical Health Library, Spencer F. and Cleone P. Eccles Health Sciences Education Building, Nora Eccles Harrison Cardiovascular Research & Training Institute, George & Dolores Eccles Institute of Human Genetics, and the new Spencer Fox Eccles School of Medicine. Beyond campus, the Eccles Health Campus and Eccles Hospital is currently under construction in West Valley City.

A true Utah man, Spence's vision has strengthened higher education, expanded opportunity, and positioned Utah as a center for learning and innovation. His greatest legacy will live on in the thousands of students empowered to lead and succeed because of opportunities he helped create.

'Entrepreneur of the Year'

A true visionary in Utah's banking industry, Spence Eccles was honored by the MountainWest Capital Network for his leadership and impact over decades in the financial sector. Spence spent nearly two decades as Chairman and CEO of First Security Corporation, but his leadership extends far beyond banking. He has served on the boards of numerous prestigious organizations including Union Pacific, U.S. Chamber of Commerce, National Parks Foundation, Wells Fargo & Company, and Intermountain Healthcare.

"My connection to Utah runs deep through generations of the Eccles family, and I've dedicated my life to ensuring the vitality and growth of our great state. From banking to philanthropy, my goal has always been to support and advocate for the people of Utah."

Where Commitment Meets Community

The George S. and Dolores Doré Eccles Foundation is dedicated to enriching the lives of Utahns and strengthening communities across the state. For 67 years, we have remained steadfast in our commitment to invest in diligent nonprofit partners that contribute to the vibrancy of our state and meet the needs of our people.
